Testimonial

The one really outstanding part that exceeded our Operations Department’s initial opinion is the overall construction of the units. They are significantly more durable and better sealed than our people thought. I believe that the heating systems were not needed until sometime in late January; and if you know our weather up here we were likely well into the minus 20 range by then. They’re so well sealed, that it actually caused us some issue with excess humidity.

Anyhow, the overall impression is far more positive than some people originally expected. We expect that with a few minor adjustments that these units will perform well for us in the future.

Thanks again for all your support,
